

Land Without Justice

by Milovan Djilas. Harcourt, Brace. 365 pp. $5.75.
 Before he was imprisoned by Tito's government in 1956, Milovan Djilas completed two manuscripts, The New Class and the present autobiographical volume, a beautifully composed account of the author's youth and of the ancestral forces that shaped his spiritual and political commitments.

The Idea of Colonialism edited by Robert Strausz-Hupé and Harry W. Hazard. Praeger. 496 pp. $5.00.

 Fifteen authorities on the subject contribute essays on the problem of colonialism—and anti-colonialism—in all its aspects as it confronts the Western powers today.

India and America

by Phillips Talbot and S. L. Poplal. Harper. 200 pp. $3.75.
 Dedicated to a strengthening of Indian-American relations, this book examines the two nations from the perspective of their differences, common interests, and involvement in world affairs at large.

The Politics of Inequality

by Gwendolen M. Carter. Praeger. 535 pp. $7.50.
 Professor Carter lets the facts speak for themselves in her scholarly survey of South Africa since 1948. In its coverage of the history, economy, traditions, politics and people of a troubled nation, the book is essential to an understanding of the Union today.

American Catholicism

by John Tracy Ellis. University of Chicago Press. 208 pp. $3.00.
 Ranging from Colonial America to the Church-State controversy of the present time, Monsignor Ellis presents a lively and illuminating history of the role of Catholicism in American life.

World Peace through World Law

by Grenville Clark and Louis B. Sohn. Harvard. 540 pp. $7.50.
 "The world is far more likely to make progress toward genuine peace . . . when a detailed plan adequate to the purpose is available." With this belief, the authors have undertaken an admirably concrete plan for world peace in the form of a proposed revision of the United Nations Charter.

You and Your Leaders

by Elmo Roper. Morrow. 288 pp. $3.95.
 Drawing heavily on the results of public opinion surveys from 1936 to 1956, this book examines shifting public attitudes toward nine American leaders and presents portraits of these men at the height of their influence.
